WHERE ARE THEY NOW?

Our Placement Office has recently released employment statistics for Gallaudet's 1975 graduating class. In today's tough labor market -- one that is particularly difficult for recent college graduates -- it is heartening to know that at least 74% of last year's graduating seniors have found employment or graduate school placements.

Of the remaining 26%, it is not known what the majority of these former students are doing as they did not use the placement services or could not be located. As of several weeks ago, there were only 13 students who were still negotiating for positions.

HOMECOMING WRAP-UP

It was an almost perfect day all around with clear skies and victories for all of Gallaudet's teams.

The day's events opened with Gallaudet tying the Toronto Silents 3-3 in soccer. Patricia Hall, who was crowned Homecoming queen at Friday evening's pep rally, led the colorful parade.

Victorious for the second consecutive week, the Bisons beat Virginia Commonwealth University by six points. The score was 12-6. Jeff Bartholmew, who played both soccer and football, kicked a 37 yard field goal -- really fine for college ball.

Our cross country team had an almost perfect victory in its match.

A camera crew from CBS was on hand both Friday and Saturday getting footage for a spot about Gallaudet on "60 Minutes."

AROUND AND ABOUT

--The College Board of Directors will be meeting Thursday.
--The College has recently won awards in the 1975 Schools and College Publications Contest for Gallaudet Today (a second place award) and the 1973-74 annual report, Earning the Right to Serve, (an honorable mention).
--Sue Ellis, who was public information director for Pre-College Programs, has been named coordinator of the White House Conference on Handicapped Individuals. The Conference will focus national attention on the needs of the handicapped and make legislative recommendations to the White House and Congress.
--Gallaudet alum, Carol Billone, has been elected as special education teacher of the year for Los Angeles County. She is also being considered for the state award.

The Registry of Interpreters for the Deaf will hold evaluations for interpreters on October 24 and 25. For further information, contact Mike Deninger at MSSD
on ext. 751.

ED TECH WORKSHOP NEARS

The Department of Educational Technology is planning a workshop for all interested persons on Saturday, October 25, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Following a brief introduction,
participants will work with a particular instructional problem and become involved in using the resources of the Department and the Library.

The purpose of this simulation is to give insight into the instructional materials development process and an awareness of the available resources.

Following lunch, participants will visit the Television Studio, Computer Center, Instructional Materials Lab and Film Media Unit to observe demonstrations and to use equipment and materials.

Please sign up with Don Torr
by October 17.
